THE LEADER AS CHANGE AGENT (C1266)
The role of change agent is only one in a leader’s constellation of roles, but in today’s competitive environment of dwindling resources and competing priorities, it is a highly critical one. Most think change is about issuing directives and communicating with stakeholders, bosses, and subordinates – but leading successful and sustainable change requires solid thought and planning. This course provides leaders, managers, and supervisors the tools and skills needed to create widespread commitment to and manage the details of any change initiative, large or small. For Directors, Managers, and Supervisors

Monday, May 6, and Wednesday, May 8, 9:00 am - 5:00 pm
