THAT'S WHAT the graduate programs at The City University of New York are all about: passionate exploration, the excitement of discovery, the knowledge to succeed. CUNY graduate offerings are among the finest in New York City — a world center for scholarship and achievement. Graduate students at CUNY have unique access to outstanding academic departments, distinguished faculty, research opportunities and a wealth of future job prospects. New York City's incomparable museums, theaters, and other cultural and financial resources — indeed, even the city's unmatched ethnic diversity — are integral to the learning experience.

Eight CUNY colleges, along with the CUNY School of Law, the Graduate School of Journalism and The Graduate Center, offer such an extraordinarily wide and comprehensive variety of programs, that it's easy to find a challenging and interesting course of study. More than 100 graduate degree programs include 19 urban professional programs designed for students who seek careers in the public or private sectors. Many programs provide practical experience as part of the course of study, smoothing the transition from classroom to workplace. Opportunities for research include over 100 nationally recognized research centers and 21 libraries with a collection of more than seven million volumes. Tuition is affordable. CUNY campuses are conveniently located.

For more information regarding a specific degree program, contact a CUNY college or visit the CUNY website.
